

More rights for your personal data!

1 Data to take away!

I can get back the data I provided to an organisation or online-service and transmit those to other ones (social networks, Internet service provider, online streaming supplier, etc.)

2 Better transparency

I know what is done with my data and it's easier for me to exercise my rights.

3 Child protection

Online services must obtain the parents' consent before registering any child under 16 or less if provided by national laws.

4 One-stop-shop

In case of problems with how my data is handled, I can contact my national data protection authority, whatever the country where the organisation is processing my data.

5 Bigger sanctions

When infringing the regulation, the organisation at fault can be fined up to 20 000 000 € or 4% of its annual worldwide turnover.

6 Right to be forgotten

I can ask search engines to delist a web page that affects my privacy negatively or ask a website to erase an information, under certain circumstances.

The European data protection regulation

After 4 years of discussions at the European Union level, a final draft of the data protection regulation has been released. It is expected to help Europe face the challenges of the digital age. The regulation will strengthen the citizens' rights and provide them with real control over their personal data. It will offer an unified framework for companies and simplify the prior notification. The regulation will be formally ratified in early 2016 and will come into force in 2018 in all the Eu countries.
